

Design milestone reached for Broken Hill's new Key Worker Accommodation

Broken Hill is being given its first look at the design of 20 key worker accommodation units which will be installed on the hospital site as part of the Key Worker Accommodation (KWA) Program.

The artist's impression of the exterior design has been released along with details of a key worker accommodation prototype unit which was recently completed off-site

The units will support health care workers looking to establish themselves in the Broken Hill community by providing accommodation close to work, which is a key factor in attracting and retaining health workers at rural and regional hospitals.

The modern and self-contained units will be fully furnished and equipped with all the necessities including kitchens, bedrooms, ensuite bathrooms, living and outdoor areas.

Consultation with clinicians during the planning and design process has been used to inform the prototype and design of the accommodation.

Sustainability has also been considered in the design of the units, which will be fully electrified and solar ready, with fixtures and fittings selected to provide efficiency for both water and energy use.

Construction of Broken Hill's accommodation units will commence off-site shortly, with delivery and on-site installation on the hospital site off Morgan Street expected to start later this year. The accommodation is expected to become available to key workers in early 2025.

Regular updates about progress will be provided via project update newsletters, social media posts and news items.

Prototype brings design to life

Our builders, Hutchinson has developed a prototype mock-up of one of the units, bringing the design to life.

In March 2024, the project team and Local Health District representatives had the opportunity to walk through the prototype, both physically and virtually, providing feedback on its functionality and any necessary changes to improve the design before the units are built and delivered to hospital sites in rural and regional NSW, including Broken Hill.

The Key Worker Accommodation Program

The NSW Government is investing $45.3 million to deliver modern accommodation for health workers in three rural health districts: Far West, Murrumbidgee and Southern NSW.

Program Benefits:

- Attract more health workers to rural and regional hospitals.
- New, fit for purpose, self-contained accommodation.
- Fully furnished, providing a safe and comfortable environment.
- Spacious units with and landscaping.
- Located on hospital grounds.
- Establish a community within a community allowing spaces for staff to connect with each other.

In the Far West Local Health District, Balranald and Broken Hill have been identified as sites for key worker accommodation.
